Call for Papers
European Journal of Operational Research
Special Issue on

Logistics: From Theory to Application

The European Journal of Operational Research will publish a special issue on Logistics: From Theory to Application. Logistics has gained an enormous attention within the recent years and provides a high potential for improving competitiveness. Advanced Information Technologies and the Internet are driving forces of such rapid developments in a global market. This issue will particularly be a publication of papers presented during the ECCO conference in Bonn from May 31st to June 2nd this year. (see the conference web page: http://www.bwl3.uni-bonn.de/pesch/ECCO.htm)

Original, high quality papers are sought which discuss theoretical, structural, algorithmic, and/or computational aspects in theory and practice and may belong, but are not restricted, to the following categories: e-logistics, online-logistics, transportation, routing, supply chains, network design, location, layout. All kinds of submissions concerning Logistics in a wider sense are welcome.

Important Dates:
Submission deadline of full paper: October 31, 2001
Notification of acceptance: April 30, 2002
Publication: October 2002

Submission Details:
The full paper should not exceed 30 double-space pages of A4, including illustrations, figures and tables. The front page of the manuscript should show its title, and the names and affiliations of all authors. It should also provide the contact information of the correspondence author, including the postal address and e-mail address. The submitted papers must not have been previously published or be currently under consideration for publication elsewhere. The format of manuscripts for the European Journal of Operational Research can be found on the web page of Elsevier Science, the publisher of the journal, under “Instructions to Authors”. The web page URL is http://www.elsevier.com/homepage/sae/orms/eor/menu.htm

All papers submitted for publication will be refereed. To be considered for the special issue, the manuscript must be sent to one of the following guest editors by November 30, 2001. Please submit your paper electronically only in Postscript or PDF format.
